Harley-Davidson Deal Is Great News for Everyone National News Harley-Davidson Deal Is Great News for Everyone In this era of “market share” nonsense at the heart of everything, the fact that Harley-Davidson keeps beating the market share index of other U.S. motorcycle companies while growing is nothing short of a miracle. An 11 percent surge in U.S. motorcycle sales in 2016, and again in 2017, helped Harley-Davidson achieve a 17 percent jump in 2017 global market share in April to surpass 16 percent, up from 13.7 percent in 2016. Bill King, President and CEO of Harley-Davidson, is credited for getting the company back on its feet through rebounding sales and significant price cuts in the wake of the recession, a strategy that has been effective in giving Harley a 200-year head start on competition. Ahead of the July 25 date for the public announcement of the terms of the proposed acquisition by Live Motorcycle Holdings LLC, a parent company of private equity firm Vintage Investment Partners, King spoke to the media at the company's Milwaukee headquarters about the long-term benefits that will come with being part of the AMF/NOSF family. The AMF/NOSF agreement will increase participation in motorcycle sales and marketing while lowering manufacturing costs, increase employment and provide important company-wide growth opportunities for Harley-Davidson. "In a competitive economy, Harley-Davidson has been able to maintain its place as the world's leading manufacturer of heavyweight motorcycles, and the addition of the AMF/NOSF investment will provide us with a new set of investors, all of whom share our same passion for our business," said King. "We're starting to reap the benefits of the investment in our business and products today, and over the next four to six years we expect to make great strides as a company by leveraging our strength and reputation around the world and further developing and investing in the products we make." Harley-Davidson, which is based in Milwaukee, has more than 250 dealers in the U.S. and Mexico, representing more than 14,000 service and parts dealers. A significant part of the company's future growth will focus on developing a "select market" strategy to target upper-middle market buyers in markets where it is underrepresented, and continuing to deliver on its
